

Contents

Introduction 1

Roy J. Lewicki and Barbara Gray

1. Framing of Environmental Disputes 11

Barbara Gray

2. Intractability: Definitions, Dimensions, and Distinctions 35

Linda L. Putnam and Julia M. Wondolleck

I. Natural Resources Cases

3. When Irresolvable Becomes Resolvable: The Quincy Library Group Conflict 63

Todd A. Bryan and Julia M. Wondolleck

4. Freeze Framing: The Timeless Dialogue of Intractability Surrounding Voyageurs National Park 91

Barbara Gray

5. The Edwards Aquifer Dispute: Shifting Frames in a Protracted Conflict 127

Linda L. Putnam and Tarla Peterson

6. Comparing Natural Resource Cases 159

Barbara Gray, Tarla Peterson, Linda L. Putnam, and Todd A. Bryan

II. Water Cases

7. Doan Brook: Latent Intractability 193
Sanda Kaufman and Mehnaaz Momen
8. Portraits of Self and Others: State-Level Conflict over Water Regulation in Ohio 225
Carolyn Wiethoff, Roy J. Lewicki, and Craig B. Davis
9. Comparing Water Cases 255
Roy J. Lewicki, Sanda Kaufman, Carolyn Wiethoff, and Craig B. Davis

III. Toxics Cases

10. The Story of Drake Chemical: A Burning
Issue 275
Ralph Hanke, Adam Rosenberg, and Barbara Gray
11. When the Parents Be Cancer-Free: Community
Voice, Toxics, and Environmental Justice in Chattanooga, Tennessee 303
Michael Elliott
12. Framing Effects in Toxic Disputes: Cross-Case
Analysis 333
Michael Elliott and Ralph Hanke

IV. Growth Management Cases

13. Colorado Growth-Related Environmental Conflicts 355
Robert Gardner, Carol Conzelman, Karen Mockler, Kim Sanchez, and Guy Burgess
14. Analysis of Colorado Growth Conflict
Frames 387
Robert Gardner and Guy Burgess

V. Conclusion

15. Lessons Learned about the Framing and Reframing of Intractable Environmental Conflicts 409

Michael Elliott, Barbara Gray, and Roy J. Lewicki

Bibliography 437

About the Contributors 449

Index 455