

Contents

---

To the Instructor . . . . .	viii
The First Day in the Laboratory . . . . .	xiii
To the Student . . . . .	xv
PART 1:
Introduction to the Laboratory . . . . .	1
The Gas Burner . . . . .	1
Work with Glass . . . . .	4
The Use of the Thermometer . . . . .	10
Techniques of Gas Handling . . . . .	13
Various Useful Techniques . . . . .	16
More Useful Techniques . . . . .	23
A Few More Useful Techniques . . . . .	27
A Transitional Assignment . . . . .	30
PART 2:
Exercises in the Scientific Method . . . . .	31
Introduction . . . . .	31
The Problems . . . . .	37
PART 3:
Concepts Related to the Scientific Method . . . . .	63
Introduction . . . . .	63
The Problems . . . . .	64
Appendices . . . . .	71
Safety in the Laboratory . . . . .	71
The Written Laboratory Report . . . . .	73
References . . . . .	75
Some Unsolved Problems . . . . .	76
To the Student Who Has Finished This Course . . . . .	78
How to Become a Chemist . . . . .	79
Serendipity, the Secret of Success . . . . .	82
The Responsibilities of the Chemist . . . . .	84
Administration of the Laboratory . . . . .	87