

Contents

Chapter 1	Proficiency Testing in the Context of Valid Analytical Measurement	1
1.1	What is Proficiency Testing?	1
1.2	Importance of Valid Analytical Measurements	2
1.3	The VAM Proficiency Testing Project	2
1.4	The Origin and Development of Proficiency Testing	4
Chapter 2	The Role of Proficiency Testing In Analytical Quality Assurance	7
2.1	Objectives of Proficiency Testing	7
2.2	Aspects of Analytical Quality Assessed in Proficiency Testing	8
2.3	The Applicability of Proficiency Testing	9
2.4	The Relationship of Proficiency Testing to Other Forms of Analytical Quality Assurance	10
2.5	The Limitations of Proficiency Testing	12
Chapter 3	Performance Scoring in Proficiency Testing – An Overview	15
3.1	The Statistical Distribution of Participants' Results	15
3.2	Approaches to Performance Scoring	16
3.3	Choice of Assigned Value	18
3.4	Choice of Target Value of Standard Deviation	18
3.5	Combination of Scores	19
3.5.1	The Rescaled Sum of z-Scores (RSZ)	20
3.5.2	The Sum of Squared z-Scores (SSZ)	21
3.6	Classification of Participants	22
3.7	Ranking of Participants	23
Chapter 4	Organisation of Proficiency Testing Schemes – General and Management Aspects	24
4.1	Competence of Scheme Organisers	24
4.2	Scheme Objectives	25
4.3	Proficiency Tests and Other Interlaboratory Studies	27
4.4	Resources Required to Operate a Scheme	29
4.5	Essential Features of an Effective Scheme	33
4.6	Additional Features of a Scheme Based on VAM Principles	34

4.7	Participant Numbers	35
4.8	Costs of Scheme Organisation and Setting Fees	36
4.9	Liaison with Potential Participants	37
4.10	Advisory Committee	37
4.11	Higher Level Quality Body	38
4.12	Procedures for the Review of Scheme Operation	39
4.13	Certification of Schemes to External Quality Standards	44
4.14	Ethical Issues	46
Chapter 5	The Organisation of Proficiency Testing Schemes – Technical Aspects	47
5.1	Overview	47
5.2	Essential Properties of Proficiency Test Materials	47
5.2.1	Homogeneity	47
5.2.2	Stability	49
5.2.3	Similarity to Routine Test Materials	49
5.3	Preparation of Proficiency Test Materials	50
5.4	Numbers and Nature of Test Materials	51
5.5	Homogeneity of Test Materials	51
5.6	Stability of Test Materials	54
5.7	Packaging and Dispatch of Test Materials	55
5.8	Frequency of Testing	55
5.9	Instructions to Participants	56
5.10	Use of Computer Disks by Participants for Reporting Results	57
5.11	Reporting Back to Participants	57
5.12	Assessing Participant Performance	58
5.13	Establishing the Assigned Value	59
5.13.1	Use of Certified Reference Materials	59
5.13.2	Consensus of Expert Laboratories	59
5.13.3	Formulated or 'Synthetic' Test Materials	60
5.13.4	Consensus of Participants	60
5.14	Procedure for Establishing a Consensus	61
5.15	Uncertainty of the Assigned Value	63
5.16	Setting the Target Value for Standard Deviation	66
5.17	Performance Scores	67
5.18	Classification of Performance	68
5.19	Ranking of Participants	71
5.20	Uncertainties of Measurement on Submitted Results	71
Chapter 6	Participation in Proficiency Testing Schemes by Analytical Laboratories	73
6.1	Benefits of Proficiency Testing	73
6.2	Costs of Proficiency Testing	74

Contents	ix
6.3 Existing Schemes	75
6.4 Practical Approach to be Adopted by Participants	75
6.5 Internal Review of Performance	76
6.6 Participant Input to Scheme Design	77
6.7 Formal Recognition of Participation	78
6.8 Integration of Proficiency Testing with Other Quality Assurance Measures	78
Chapter 7 Proficiency Testing for End-users of Analytical Data	81
7.1 The Function of Proficiency Testing	81
7.2 Fitness for Purpose	82
7.3 Quality Procedures Necessary for Reliable Data	83
7.4 How Proficiency Testing Can Help in the Selection of Reliable Laboratories	83
7.5 Interpretation of Laboratory Performance in a Proficiency Testing Scheme	84
7.6 Resource Implications of Proficiency Testing to End-users	85
7.7 Accreditation Agencies	85
7.8 Role of End-users in Scheme Organisation	86
Chapter 8 Proficiency Testing – The Future	88
Glossary of Terms and Acronyms	90
Appendix 1: Eurachem-UK Register of Proficiency Testing Schemes	97
Appendix 2: Proficiency Testing Schemes Taking Part in the VAM Survey	100
Appendix 3: Examples of Performance Reports Issued by PT Scheme Organisers	101
References	107
Subject Index	109