

Contents

	Page
Preface	7
Part I The Problem
1 The producer from more to better	11
From more working-hours per man to more work per man-hour	11
More production demands a greater sales volume	12
Quality consciousness makes its appearance in production, purchases and sales	14
2 From 'the king is customer' to 'the customer is king'	23
More production leads to higher consumption	23
The invisible consumer comes into the picture	24
The consumer becomes quality conscious	26
3 Society moves via more to better	31
Advancing towards more	31
Is more really more?	32
Society becomes quality conscious	35
Part II The Analysis
4 Towards integrated quality control	41
A new look at quality	41
Definition of quality	41
The economics of quality	43
The problem of optimal quality	46
Dynamics of quality	48
Towards optimal quality	50

	Page
5 The origin of quality	53
The quality circuit	53
The science of decisions versus the art of decision making	54
The hierarchy of decisions	55
Basic decisions	58
Programme decisions	63
Design decisions	71
Production decisions	79
Distribution decisions	98
Service decisions	108
6 The changing structure of quality control	113
7 Standardization – the keystone of the quality building	117
Part III Realization
8 Changing mentality	131
9 The development cycle	135
10 The widening scope of quality control	139